This was my reply

Hi Chris

Thank you for your huge support. People like you are so so valuable to us. The thing that is so powerful about the books is that through the books we are changing the minds of unconverted Kiwis. Let me explain what I mean by this.

A converted person is someone who becomes active in stopping co-governance. By active I mean they start distributing Julian Batchelor's book about co-governance, help organise meetings, invite people to his meetings, hand out business cards and flyers, and so on. Something happens in their mind and heart where a switch is flicked and they transition from being a passive observer into being a passionate activist.

An unconverted person is someone who is not yet converted.

When it comes to co-governance, there are six kinds of people out there in NZ society, and here they are.

1. The drivers
2. The ignorant
3. The brainwashed.
4. The partly awakened.
5. The awakened.
6. The Activist.

1. The Drivers / Initiators.

- This group know exactly what co-governance is.
- They are driving it.
- They are private tribal companies and tribal representatives.
- Drivers include MPs in parliament who are colluding with elite Iwi, and corporate lawyers and consultants who are also colluding.

2. The ignorant.

- This group do not know what co-governance is.
- When you ask them, they don't have a clue.
- Even though the Maorification of New Zealand is everywhere apparent, and is infiltrating every aspect of life, they have not woken up to the fact, had 'their Eureka moment' if you will, that this is co-governance in action.

- They have not joined the dots, connecting this Maorification of New Zealand with co-governance.
- In short, they have not woken up to the fact that their country is being taken over, and a coup by stealth is happening, and it's elite Maori who are driving the coup.

3. The brainwashed

- This group have heard about co-governance and they think they have a good handle on what it is and what it's not, and they are Ok with it.
- They think it's just Maori having a bigger say in decision making, Maori 'having a seat at the table', Maori 'involved in the management of New Zealand', the legitimate outworking of the Treaty of Waitangi, Maori who are our Treaty partners, addressing historic injustices / grievances and so on.
- The government and Elite Iwi have this group in their hand, and they have planned and strategised for this group to think as they do.
- In short, the government has deliberately targeted / brainwashed all Kiwis to think like this.
- They have brainwashed them via the MSM and the $55m Public Interest Journalism Fund.
- For what reason?
- So that elite Iwi can progress the coup unopposed.

4. The partly awakened

- This is group know something is up.
- They can see the Maorification of New Zealand happening everywhere, and they know it's not good.
- They sense they are being groomed / brainwashed through the TV, the media, and in my other ways.
- They know the direction the country is going is wrong, and they can feel and sense that Maori 'stuff' is being forced upon the population.
- They want someone to help them join all the dots and clarify their gut feeling that something bad is going down in New Zealand.
- They want more information.
- They want someone to tell them exactly what is going on because all they get from the media is 'relax, everything is Ok, it's all just in your imagination, and you have nothing to worry about'.
- They know this is BS, but they just don't why it's BS.
- They know the Main Stream Media is BS'ing about it too.
- In short, they want clarity.
- They want their gut feelings about the wrongness of the Maorification of our country clarified.
- They want more information.
- They want the facts.
- They sense they are being duped.
- They want someone to tell them to truth.
- They are looking for 'more information'.

5. The awakened

- This group know for sure that a coup is underway and New Zealand is being stolen by stealth.
- They have joined the dots.
- Their eyes have been opened.
- They are angry and worried.
- They don't want to let this happen.
- They talk about it with others, their friends and family, and other people they meet.
- For them, the coup is an obvious as the light of day.
- The evidence to substantiate their conclusions is all around them everyday.
- The more they see, the more worried and angry they become.

- They are active on on-line forums and they belong to various lobby groups like NZCPR, Democracy Action, Hobson's Choice, The Tax Payers Union, Groundswell, and so on.
- They donate to these organisations.
- All this is good and to be encouraged.
- However, they have not taken the next crucial step.
- Which is?
- They have not transitioned into becoming what I call 'Activist' or 'activists'.

6. The Activists

- This group are just like the awakened group, but they go one step further.
- They are taking radical action.
- They have become Activist. Activist invest financially, they invest with their time.
- A Activist is an awakened person who knows that they can't just talk to 'the converted'.
- The converted people in New Zealand are the already awakened.
- Activist know that they have to focus on, and get to the ignorant, the brainwashed, and the partly awakened.
- I call these THE BIG THREE.
- Activist realise they must transition from being angry and concerned about co-governance, to becoming personally involved in reaching the big three, and seeing them become Activist.
- They realise that to do this going to cost money, personal effort, and sacrifice.
- They are like our soldiers in WW 1 and 2.
- These soldiers had to leave the comfort of their homes and go.
- These Activist, this fast growing group of people standing against co-governance, are just like our WW1 and 2 hero soldiers.
- They have realised they must get up and go and reach the big three.
- Yesterday, I was out about and I met a man (Bill) who had been handing out my books to people.
- Bill was a Activist.
- Distributing Julian's books to neighbours, friends, business leaders, putting them in letter boxes, and so on, is a sure way of reaching the unconverted.
- Holding public meetings all over New Zealand is another.
- Setting up a media channel so we can control the narrative, put out our own videos, is another.
- Bill told me he had given the books to two people (Andy and Greg) who were previously 'for' co-governance.
- Bill knew they were for co-governance because he had had a conversation with them about it and they were adamant about it.
- Andy and Greg said all the things about co-governance that brainwashed people would say.
- Three weeks went by.
- In other words, Bill gave Andy and Greg three weeks to read Julian's book.
- Bill met them again after three weeks had gone by.
- They had read Julian's book.
- Their words to Bill were something like 'Mate, we didn't realise how bad co-governance was. Thank you for showing us' and the conversation carried on.
- They (Andy and Greg) wanted to know where they too could get some books and tell others.
- This is a conversion story.
- It's about one man (Bill) who transitioned from being an awakened person into being a Activist and the effect he had.
- It's about reaching the unconverted and seeing them converted.
- An activist thinks big picture. They dream about how they can get more people involved in fighting against co-governance. They plan and strategise. They want to mobilise others to join in the fight.

And why do we need to get to and convert THE BIG THREE?

Well, the short answer is that unless we do, we won't stop co-governance. This is the truth.

Secondly, if we are going to get 100,000 people to Auckland Domain just before the election for the biggest show of opposition New Zealand has every known to a government direction, then we have to reach and convert the unconverted.

We don't have the numbers right now but they are growing fast.

And why do we need this show of strength, this show of solidarity?

These 100,000 people?

What's the purpose?

It's to send a message to politicians in all the political parties that unless they stop co-governance completely (not tinker with it), they will not get our vote. Period. Votes is all political parties care about, so unless we talk votes, unless we show a massive volume of voters in one place, they will not listen.

100,000 people is a lot of votes. It's a big show. With this number of people gathered, they will listen.

Together, united, 100,000 of us, we can stop co-governance.

In 100 years from now, your grandchildren and great grand children will be able to read stories about you, hear about you, how you were like an ANZAC soldier who stood up for your country in it's time of need.

When they go to ANZAC parades, as we all should, they will think of you.

Chris, you are a Activist!

Well done my friend

Yours for the sake of saving our country
